

"I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day:
the night cometh, when no man can work." John 9:4

Dear partners in the ministry,

September-October

Hello! I hope that everything is going well for you and that you are enjoying the godness of the Lord. I am so thankful for what the Lord is doing in my life and what he will continue to do. Ps. 118:1 "Give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good..."

Thank you so much for all your prayers. You just don't know how encouraging it is to know-not to believe but to know-that there is a group of folks praying for me. The Lord has been so good. Many things have happened in the last couple of months while I have been on deputation. I have been able to drive over 4,000 miles and visit numerous amount of churches from five different states and been able to present my burden for the Dominican Republic. So far as of November 2, 2014, I have had a few churches take me on for support: 8% of my support is coming in and 5% is promised from many churches. God is good!

One thing that I have tried my best to do while I am on deputation is not just to raise financial and prayer support, but have attempted my best to challenge, motivate, and encourage others (especially teens) to seek/live in God's will. There are a few young people that the Lord has allowed me to influence with my testimony. On the picture to your right, Miguel is in the center and Chris on the left. Miguel is currently in a secular college studying architecture, but he feels the calling from God to be a preacher. He wants to give up his basketball desires and vocation for preaching the gospel. Miguel has to deal with a great deal of turmoil in his home because of his decision to seek God's will. Chris-the one with the white sweater- just got saved this summer and is on fire for God. He has been growing very fast. Chris has a desire to live for God and to see souls reached with the gospel. Chris also is a great basketball player and has shown desires of leaving his love to play basketball for preaching.

I also had the privilege to visit a church in Pennsylvania and meet a fine young man named Vincent. He is a young man whose passion for missions was stirred up while I presented my burden. Pray that the Lord would provide the financial need to him to get through Bible College so he can begin his missionary journey to China. So glad I had a small part in influencing these young men to live for God.

Pray for these friends of mine as the Lord continues to work with them.
